There are four acts. Phaedrium kept her pregnancy a secret from everyone except her old nurse. Megadorus is his uncle and wants to marry Phaedria because he wants to settle down but in the end he gives up that idea. Genre: comedy Time: indeterminate Place: House of Euclio, temple, woods Book summary Euclio finds a pot of gold and is a cheap old man who hides his gold from everyone. 252 You have reached the limit for the Loeb Classical Library preview page. The Plautus style, full of popular speeches and jokes, has become a model for many other writers. They all came to Euclio's house to prepare the wedding. However, the ancient plot summaries and fragments allow us to understand how the play ended. Euclio went to bury the pot in the woods, but Lyconides' servant Strobilus saw him and stole the pot. Strobilus follows Euclius while Lyconides begs his mother to persuade his uncle Megadoro not to marry. Meanwhile Lyconides and Fedria tell in love. Plautus' comedy is recognizable by the intelligent servant who has the most important role and distorts the plot. Plautus is considered one of the most skillful descriptors of human characters worthy of ridicule LAAulularia is one of Plautus' best known works. Meanwhile, Lyconides has realized that he can no longer delay. Lyconides is expected to return the gold pot and get Phaedria in return. Euclion beat up one of the men at his house because he thought he was trying to rob him. He became selfish and suspicious of everyone. He worked as a theatre worker, actor in Rome and then got into debt and became a slave. Euclio does not yet know the situation of his daughter when Megadorus proposes his game. With the help of the God of his house he finds the pot of gold and becomes from keeping her safe. Be so worried His gold, he can't understand that Fedrius is also going through a personal crisis. 167aA69. II. He lived between 254 and 184 BC. Strobilus knows that Lycoides loves Fedria and wants to marry her. 406AcA14A), so it can be assumed that the work was written at that time... Euclius cried out to his servant because he thought he was spying on him. Log in or sign up to continue reading. Megadorus wants to settle down and goes to Euclio and asks for his daughter's hand. The pregnant Fedria goes into labor just when Euclio realizes that her dish is missing and he goes crazy. 250 Megadorus sends the cooks to Euclio's house to prepare the wedding banquet. He was convinced that Megadorus had prepared all this just to get his hands on the pot of gold. Eunomia now convinces Megadorus to give up her marriage plans. Lycoid returns the gold to Euclius and frees his slave. Lycoid for the love of Fedria gives up her inheritance only to be with Fedria who is pregnant with her child. All he thought about was his gold. The most popular are "Aulularia" or "The Golden Vase" and "Maneachmi." This misunderstanding translates into one of the most amusing scenes of the ancient comedy. The theme is Euclio's economy and greed for gold. Licoides then repeats his words to Euclius, who at first believes that Licoides is admitting to stealing the gold. Euclion is still afraid for his gold, so he goes to hide it in the temple. In the introduction Euclio found the gold and hid it, in the twist Megadorus wants to marry Fedria, then the golden vase disappears and in the end Euclio gets his golden vase and Lyconides gets Fedria. Conides asked Megadorus to let him have the Fedria. It is generally assumed that the Aulularia is based on a work by Menander, but of course there are other possibilities as well. Euclio is a poor man who finds the golden pot and with it he gets materialistic wealth but becomes poor in everything else. of his life. Marriage takes place, and euklio, who realized that gold can not make him happy, he gives the young couple. Him's gold was more important than anything else. He tried everything just to be with her and their child. Megadorus leads a monologue from which we find out that he is a really honest man. The Lyconides slave "meets his teacher, tells him he stole the gold of Euclio and asks his freedom. He confesses his mother's action and says he wants to marry the Phaedrium. At the end Strobilus appears and tells the lyconides that He found the pot of gold. The rich megadoro does not want the woman equally rich and old that his sister has in mind, but he prefers the young and poor Faedrium. Although this is one of the most famous comedies of Plautus, we don't know for sure That he wrote the original and when the Latin work was executed first. Megadoro and Euclio met on the street and Megadoro were rushing the marriage so Euclio scared himself for the gold of him. He did not recognize his attacker, but he knew who he was him. In the Latin game there are several references to the luxurious lifestyle of women (I. When euchilio listened to all that voice coming out his house was convinced that someone was about to steal his gold. The game is easy to read and the author It makes people's fun.
